Course Description

Human Resource Development(HRD) is the core part for sustainable development of organization and individuals. If human resource would not be developed consistently, it could be locked in its old paradigm and die out. HRD includes training and development, career development, and organization development, and provides the theoretical foundation for sustainable development of organization and individuals. This lecture will be operated on the way of "action learning". Therefore, learning teams will be organized and perform team projects.

Course Objectives

Studying main concepts and theories in HRD, implementing action learning projects and improving theoretical and implementing capabilities for HRD
